Mattings

From Japan—from China. These typical midsummer floor coverings are good for winter, too; the business in mattings does not cease with the ending of summer—people buy them the whole year around. A few rugs scattered on a matting and you have a room furnished tastefully and comfortably enough for any season or the year.

Some Special Values in Mattings at $4 and $8 for 40-yard Rolls.

The $4.00 rolls are just plain, all grass, but seamless; the $8.00 kinds are reversible goods, inlaid and wood flooring effects, and the warp is cotton. Here again there are enough styles to make selecting an easy matter.

No branch of business of the many we have opened during the past fifteen years has ever made the rapid strides in a given time that furniture has. It has been a revelation to folks hereabouts—these new prices in furniture. New beginners people call us—novices in the furniture business—better that than to be fossilized—wedded to a system that drives business out of your store. Such prices for furniture as you will pay here will make you a firm fast friend of the furniture store as it has made you a firm fast friend of every other department.

CHATTY LETTERS FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS

TOPICS OF INTEREST IN NEAR-BY TOWNS

DOYLESTOWN.

It is hardly necessary to state that there has been considerable talk in this old borough about the Quay trial, or rather its termination. It is equally superfluous to add that it is surprising how many friends Senator Quay has just now, friends who were not to be found before the termination of his trial. Everybody knew just how the case would end, but some did a deal of talking in the other direction before the verdict was rendered. And what a farce it has been in many respects. The Senator's most bitter opponents here are now silent. They had much to say about Quay's iniquity before and during his trial, but they have nothing to suggest as to the future. It all goes to show that people, after all, are like a drove of sheep, only needing a leader to cause them to bolt in any direction. Should Senator Quay's enemies adopt new tactics and inaugurate another plan of attack it would be but a short time before all their followers here would join in the hue and cry, and most of them would do so under the impression that they were engaged in something original, something they had discovered themselves.

Senator Quay's friends at Doylestown were delighted with his acquittal, which means the vindication of his character so far as this particular matter is concerned. They are not only pleased but are showing a forgiving and charitable disposition by sparing the feelings of the other faction. It is understood that if the anti-Quay people will let by-gones be by-gones the Quay men will be careful not to disturb the harmony that appears to be settling over the battle field. If, however, the anti-Quay people will not accept the verdict of the jury as a just rebuke to the conspirators who sought to ruin Quay politically and socially, the friends of the Senator are prepared to fight until the last ditch. They would prefer the other way, but not through fear of defeat. There has been a change of heart experienced by many men in this section of the county. As they look back upon the ordeal through which Senator Quay passed they realize that there was malice in the hearts of his foes. Many who were reluctant to voice the sentiment then really felt sorry for Senator Quay during his trial. They will not tolerate further injustice, and so far as Bucks County is concerned that famous trial is probably the most fortunate circumstance that could have occurred to aid Senator Quay to regain his prestige. He will have the support of not only the old guard in Bucks, but also the neutral element, composed of men who at heart like to see fair play. It is pleasant to note, however, that there is a disposition to compromise all around. The prospect for a united party next fall is at present very bright. The only thing that remains to be done is the withdrawal of the Assembly candidates for State delegates, but it was stated Monday that this would surely occur this week. If the Assemblymen are not out of the field before this letter is published it will be a rather remarkable situation, for their friends have promised that they would not delay further. With this matter settled everything will move along as if should for a time at least. Probably some politicians will smile at this, but they mistake the temper of the people of this county quite as often as the poorest guesser. Just now the people are for Quay.

The poor old Democratic party has had another falling-out in Bucks. No doubt the leaders would deny that anything serious had occurred, but a little breach has started which may widen considerably before next fall. It is the old free silver and sound money factions at war, the former under the leadership of Webster Grim, and the latter composed of the silk stocking Democracy. While the gold men have little following they are influential enough to create considerable discord. Judge Yerkes is said to be the man to whom the gold men look for advice and counsel. The two factions clashed on Monday in a contest for the County Chairmanship, Warren S. Long, the old chairman, defeating Harvey S. Kiser, a new and energetic young hustler in the Democratic ranks. Mr. Kiser withdrew after making a vigorous canvass. There was no feeling over the old currency issue, but a revival of the animosity engendered during that campaign. Some of the old leaders cannot bear the idea of a comparatively young man like Mr. Grim assuming to dictate, and several attempts have been made to turn him down. The little fracas on Monday shows that feeling has not subsided, and more or less of it will be displayed until the fall election.

EMILIE.

Charles and Jesse Stackhouse visited their father on Sunday.

The property of Edward Woolston has been sold to John McIlhany.

An entertainment will be given in the M. E. Church on Saturday evening, consisting of kinetoscope pictures and phonograph music.

The quiet wedding of Miss Sallie Schaffer and Edward Appleton took place on Thursday at their residence near Woodbourne. The bride wore a dainty dress of gray silk, carrying an exquisite bunch of white roses and carnations. Among the guests present were Mrs. Schaffer, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. John Schaffer, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Schaffer, Mr. and Mrs. Ellwood Schaffer, Mr. Edward Schaffer, Mr. and Mrs. Appleton, Miss Anna Appleton, Mr. William Stackhouse, Mr. and Mrs. Rue, Mr. and Mrs. John Hibbs, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wright.

TULLYTOWN.

The news of the acquittal of Senator M. S. Quay last week was received with unfeigned joy by many Republicans here, who had insisted from the time of the indictment that the "Old Man" would come out all right. The feeling here generally of those who had followed the evidence was that no other verdict could have been properly and justly pronounced than not guilty.

Whatever may have been the sentiment of the Republicans in this town at the time of the convening of the Legislature there is no doubt that were the question of the election of M. S. Quay to the Senate of the United States put to a popular vote here to-day that there would be an overwhelming majority in favor of his election.

Even among those who were indifferent to the candidacy of Mr. Quay for the Senate, and, in fact, among those who were actually opposed to his being returned, the evidence of the political purposes to which Judge Gordon and John Wanamaker put the papers and books of the People's Bank, which were afterwards placed in evidence, has given birth to a feeling that Mr. Quay has been unjustly and unfairly treated. The spirit of fair play, which is in the breast of every true American, revolts at this political chicanery of a judge on the bench and the ex-postmaster general, by which they expected to capture a Senatorship.

Interest in Tullytown's councilmanic deadlock has waned considerably in the past month, but the probabilities are that the next meeting of council will find it still intact.

There would have been in all probability no contest had not the friends of one of the candidates attempted to revive an issue in local politics which is as dead as Moses, and by an excessive application of wind attempt to put life into the cadaver. Just how long they will be able to keep a semblance of vitality in the corpse remains to be seen.

Speaking of these matters naturally brings to mind the coming election of delegates to the next State Convention. Many will question the wisdom of the representatives of Bucks County standing as delegates on account of the factional fight that is apt to ensue. It is questionable whether these gentlemen themselves feel as much like making the stand as they did a few weeks ago. It would probably be good politics and sooth many sore places if these gentlemen would withdraw as gracefully as possible in the interest of harmony.

Last Thursday evening the Trenton Kinetoscope Company, under the management of Messrs. Storm and Swing, gave a very successful entertainment in the M. E. Church to a large and appreciative audience. The exhibition consisted of moving pictures thrown on the screen, alternating with selections on the phonograph. Many of the scenes were incidents of the late war, the funeral procession of the Maine victims being particularly impressive and realistic.

Judge Briggs is having a new wire fence put along his farm property on the north side of the Bordentown road. The judge expects this new fence to materially decrease the drifting of snow in the road at this point in the future If his theory is correct the borough will be saved the expense of opening the road in coming winters. The fence is being furnished and erected by Harry H. Smith, of Bristol.

The topic of Rev. William J. Wright at the Christian church next Sunday morning will be "The Cry of Faith," evening topic, "A Night of Storm and Its Sequel."

Next Sunday evening Rev. Francis Hawke of the M. E. Church, will preach upon the topic "Divine Influence on the Human Body."

August Frank, of Trenton, an employe of the Goodyear Vulcanite Works of this place, had one of his thumbs caught in the wash roller while at work on Monday last, and that member was so badly mashed that it was necessary to amputate it. Dr. I. N. Woodman performed the operation.

Constable Joel Mason, Jr., served notice on the band of gypsies who were located on the island here to vacate at once, as complaints became so numerous and of so urgent a nature that it was deemed advisable to have them removed. He subsequently gave them notice and they vacated on Monday morning last.

Walter Sines and H. M. Griffith, of this place, both of whom are members of the Hetzel Bowling Club, of Trenton, figured largely in the scores made by their club on Friday evening last in the games against the New Brunswick Club. Griffith scoring the highest number of points, and Sines being second best. Both of these gentlemen will accompany the Trentonians to New Brunswick on Wednesday evening next.

The heartfelt sympathy of the people of this community is extended to Mr and Mrs. James White, of Mill street, in the loss of their only daughter, Luella, whose death occurred at noon on Monday last. She was a most estimable young lady and was very well liked by all who knew her. She was 25 years of age and had been afflicted with heart trouble for some time past, and on Sunday evening last was taken with a violent attack, from which she never rallied.

Henry Swangler, son of Isaac Swangler, janitor of the public schools of this place, while at work on the new building now being erected for the Trenton Passenger Railway Company, at that place, fell from the scaffold upon which he was working to the ground below, a distance of over twenty-five feet, and broke one of the bones in his ankle. Dr. Beatty, of Trenton, attended to his wants, after which he was conveyed to his home on Mill street, Morrisville, in a cab, and is now under the care of Dr. I. N. GREATER YARD'S.

LITTLE BIT OF INTERESTING STORE HISTORY.

The store of Mrs. M. M. Yard, of Trenton, N. J., has been one of the landmarks of that historic old city for more than thirty years. It was managed by her son, Mr. Fred B. Yard, for many years prior to Mr. Yard's demise, and in that time he gained that thorough knowledge of the details of the business so necessary to the carrying out of the policy inaugurated and faithfully pursued by its founder.

From the very beginning the one idea of handling none but strictly reliable merchandise at uniformly fair prices has been rigidly adhered to, with the result that the business has kept pace with the growth of the city and the demands of its citizens.

Its special mission was the gathering together and selling of ladies' furnishings of the better varieties. Gloves, Muslin Underwear, Laces, Embroideries, Hosiery, Dress Trimmings of every conceivable sort, were made leaders, and so satisfactory has been the service at all times that the phrase, "They DO Sell Nice Things at Yard's," has become a familiar one among the ladies of Trenton and vicinity.

With such service, coupled with a most liberal policy, which insists that every patron shall be given full satisfaction in all particulars, no wonder the business outgrew its quarters.

The store next to the old stand has been pressed into the Yard service, the combination forming one of the most commodious in Trenton.

It is fitted up with retiring, reading and writing room, and out-of-town residents are very cordially invited to take advantage of its accommodations and to make Yard's a place wherein to meet friends, leave bundles or use in any manner.

We suggest that our readers visit Yard's when next in Trenton. They will not be importuned. The policy of Yard's forbids it. They're free to go and come, whether they buy or not.

Clothing.

Will you look at our stock of clothing? Some facts. Look at these prices: Men's suits, black cheviot, $5 00—good value. THURSDAY APRIL 27, 1899.

The hero of Appomatox is honored today.

Three anti-Quayites were elected in Lebanon on Saturday at special primaries to fill the vacancies in Select Council. Precedents seem to be without value in Lebanon.

General David Mc M. Gregg, of Berks County, will probably be a candidate for State Treasurer. The gallant old cavalry leader would make an ideal standard bearer.

Rear Admiral Schley, who has been mentioned as a running mate for Colonel Bryan, might profit by taking cognizance of some of the pointers thrown out by Admiral Dewey.

The Philadelphia Press declares that the "war on Quay will go on." As the hero of many desperate fights gives no intention of a surrender there is promise of lively times ahead.

The famous "red book" was admitted in evidence by Judge Biddle as a bank book. In such case what right had Judge James Gay Gordon to take and keep possession of it for six months?

The poem, "Hoch der Kaiser," which has jumped into sudden notoriety, and which is now being printed in the newspapers over the land, was published in the GAZETTE several weeks ago.

Great credit should be given the Legislature for what it did not do in the matter of new legislation. If it had agreed before adjournment not to meet again for ten years the people would have been satisfied.

The ninety-two members of the Legislature who stuck to their caucus obligations until the end propose to give a dinner to Senator Quay. The "insurgents" also propose to have a feast at the expense of Senator Flinn.

All of the Republican anti-Quay members of the Legislature will be the guests of Senator William Flinn at a banquet in Philadelphia on May 12. Captain Frank G. Edwards, of Bristol, is on the committee of arrangements.

There is every reason to believe that Col. Quay will be seated by his colleagues in the Senate with votes to spare. There are now sixty-seven votes pledged in support of the Republican leader. President McKinley and the National Administration will contribute its influence to thwart the conspiracy of organization wreckers in Pennsylvania.

Captain Coghlan has incurred the displeasure of Secretary Long by acquainting the members of the New York Union League with Admiral Von Diederich's reprehensible conduct toward Admiral Dewey at Manila. That the Germans were not friendly to Dewey is acknowledged, but the offensive admiral was removed and Coghlan had no right, considering his position, to reopen the ugly question.

The leaders of the Anti-Quay League of Montgomery County have practically agreed upon a delegation to be sent to the State Convention. While not announced formally it is understood that the selection includes A. R. Place, of Lansdale; Theodore W. Bane, of Norristown; W. W. Potts, of Upper Merion; Professor John Meiggs, of Pottstown and Charles Hebor Clark, of Conshohocken.

The State of Kansas has a law which presumes to prohibit the Western Union Telegraph Company from charging more than fifteen cents for a message of ten words delivered in any part of the State. The company has had numerous damage suits filed against it for refusing to comply with the law. If the law is enforced the Western Union Company declares it will close every telegraph office in Kansas. The Kansans also want 50-cent sleeping car rates.

Gen. Frank Reeder, formerly Secretary of the Commonwealth, is to succeed Attorney General Elkin as chairman of the Republican State Committee, and the campaign will soon be under way in every county of the State, says the Conshohocken Recorder. The Democratic State Committee met on Wednesday and Col. James M. Guffey's leadership was emphasized in the election of John S. Rilling, of Erie, as chairman. June 14 will see the Democrats in convention for the nomination of a State ticket, but the Republicans will not come together until the third week of August.

It has been stated that the special committee in charge of the proposition to change the rules governing the Republican party in Bucks will recommend the Crawford County system of nominating candidates, with a provision to bar ticket cutters from participating in the primaries. It makes little difference whether the provision is incorporated or not as it will become inoperative. The borough organization has a similar provision in its governing rules, but the point is never raised. There is no way to determine whether a voter cuts his ticket unless he is disposed to publish the fact.

Information is received by way of Doylestown that the Bucks County Assemblemen who announced themselves as candidates for State delegates intend to withdraw their candidacy in the interest of Republican harmony. If this be true, Messrs. Edwards, Winner and Wilkinson will give tangible evidence that they place party supremacy paramount to all other considerations. No one will question their right to be candidates, but it is a fact that their continuance in the field means a factional fight of bitter intensity, which in the end will leave the party in a disrupted and demoralized condition. The Democrats are getting together and harmony prevails within their ranks, and the Republican party of Bucks cannot afford to weaken its slight advantage over its common enemy by internal warfare. The Assemblymen will strengthen themselves immeasurably by submitting to a fair and honorable compromise, and we are gratified to learn that a movement is contemplated which will tend to bring the factions together in a manner that will result to the material advancement of the party.

A DAY OF JUSTICE.

Before a fair jury and an upright judge Matthew S. Quay has been fully vindicated of the foul charges brought against him by his political enemies.

The great political conspiracy has failed utterly in its attempt to ruin the character of a fellow-being in order to gratify a selfish ambition.

The Quay trial has become familiar to all. The utter collapse of the prosecution is known in every city, town and village in the State.

The evidence produced was of such a flimsy texture that the defense actually placed no witnesses on the stand and offered no testimony in rebuttal, claiming that nothing had been presented which called for an answer. And the jury brought in a verdict of not guilty.

Colonel Quay has been the storm centre of many a contest, but never before has he been compelled to face such a spiteful, disgraceful and malignant enemy. He has never been defeated, and it is gratifying to know that he has emerged from this despicable assault with colors still flying, unsullied and unconquered.

The Republicans of Pennsylvania will resent the unholy warfare waged against Colonel Quay by a set of political jobbers, who have hoodwinked a sufficient number of Legislators to cause the defeat of the man whom they designated as their choice for United States Senator. Already tell-tale arrows have been shot, and at the proper moment there will be a regular fusilade.

The people will see whether a Democratic judge can so far forget his dignity as to descend to the level of persecuting their leader without a stinging rebuke to all those who participated in the intrigue.

The arrest of Colonel Quay was a blessing in disguise. His trial and the revelation of the plot to destroy his political career will tend to strengthen and cement Republican lines and unite the party in the State. Outside of a few haters Republicans generally will accept the verdict of the jury and resume operations for the good of the party, working in harmony with the regular organization, which has no motive beyond Republican supremacy.

There were many members of the Legislature who voted against Senator Quay simply because he "had charges hanging over him." Now that these have been effectually cleared away they have no other consistent course than to sever their relations with the anti-Quay league.

Stalwart Republicans have every reason to felicitate themselves upon the complete collapse of the Quay prosecution and the prospect of a reunited party.

AS TO TRUSTS.

The Democratic party, as represented by William J. Bryan, sees a ray of hope for enthroning itself at the National capital upon the issue of opposition to trusts. One of the noticeable features of latter day Democracy is the alacrity with which it gobbles up "issues." It no sooner loses a contest on one issue than it dons a new one. Bryan has fought and lost in many a distinct cause. First it was free trade, and when it was found that the American people positively refused to have its home market thrown open to a competition in which the Old World pauper labor figured, a new sensation in the shape of free and unlimited coinage of silver at an impossible ratio was sprung. Overwhelmingly defeated on the silver issue, and as a result of the late war, Democracy next tackled colonial expansion—"imperialism" is the conjuring term applied. Now we have the matter of trusts, which the Democratic party has relegated unto itself the duty of regulating.

The fact is the Democratic party is anything to win. There is no such thing as Democratic principles. Democracy is a destroying angel. Ever willing and capable of tearing down, but sadly lacking in architectural ability. The party has no policy other than Republican opposition. It puts no beneficial laws upon the statute books. Its representatives are schooled in obstructive tactics. It has no legitimate leadership other than demagogues who go trailing about the country appealing to passion and endeavoring to disturb the natural order of things. It is a safe prediction that if Bryanism had full sway in the Legislature and Executive branches of the Government, industrial, financial and political chaos would ensue.

The formation of giant trade combinations is as much deprecated by Republicans as by Democrats. Trusts are the natural result of prosperity. The great abundance of capital and the desire for investment is the cause of the formation of trusts. The defeat of Bryan gave such a wonderful impetus to business of all kinds that enterprises of immense magnitude have been the natural result.

There is no doubt but that the election of McKinley is responsible for the present tendency to invest money in industrial pursuits. If the Democratic party had been successful no such thing would have happened. Depression would have reigned supreme and investors could not have been found with a search warrant.

But the Republican party is more intelligently opposed to competition destroying agencies than the Democracy. Trusts have as much of a beneful influence upon Republicans as Democrats, probably more so, and the Republican party will deal with the question in a more satisfactory manner than the Democrats are capable of doing. A Republican Congress has already put an anti-trust law into operation, but its provisions are not far-reaching enough.

The next Republican National Convention will undoubtedly deal with the trust problem, therefore Bryanism will again have to search for a new "issue."

Considerable speculation has been rife concerning the identity of the person who sent the telephone message to Receiver Barlow from Harrisburg, telling him to take Hopkins' books out of his private desk. Many remarks have been heard suggesting that the right man could be easily named. Attorney Shields during the trial said: "From some coward who has never yet dared to show his face comes a message over the 'phone to the Receiver, and at 6 o'clock a Judge, then on the Common Pleas Bench, obtains possession of the private letters of John Hopkins."

The Sun Still Shines.

Telford Star.

Magee has broken away from the regular ranks and voted for Jones, but the sun shines as usual and Quay still leads in the Senatorial race. Meanwhile the delegate elections thus far held all endorsed the principle of united party action in obeying the decision of the caucus, and sustaining the rules and customs of the party.

THE GOVERNOR'S APPOINTMENT.

The appointment of M. S. Quay by Governor Stone, subject to the action of the Senate, to fill the vacancy in the United States Senate existing by reason of the Legislature's failure to elect a successor to Colonel Quay has been variously commented upon by newspapers and individuals.

The bitter opponents of the Governor's appointee declare that the Executive has exceeded his constitutional rights in making such appointment, and quote precedents to establish the belief that the Senate will oppose the seating of the Beaver man.

Governor Stone made the appointment under the privileges granted by a section of the constitution, which reads:

If vacancies happen by resignation or otherwise during the recess of the Legislature of any State the Executive thereof may make temporary appointments until the next meeting of the Legislature, which can then fill such vacancies.

The enemies of Quay have declared that it will be impossible for the Senate to seat him, in face of the action taken in former and similar cases, and the Corbett and Mantle appointments are cited in the effort to demonstrate the fact that the next Senate will refuse to confirm Governor Stone's appointment.

The United States Senate has the sole right of determining who shall sit with it. The question is not one of law or precedent. It is simply an election case, and if there are enough members willing to vote for the seating of Senator Quay, and they do so, he will be elected to his old seat. It is a matter for the Senate to decide and no one else.

When it comes down to a question of precedent, precedents have been established both ways. Among the cases establishing precedents for the admission to the Senate of gubernatorial appointees, where the matter was disputed are the following:

1801, Uriah Tracy, Connecticut.
1808, Samuel Smith, Maryland.
1823, Ambrose H. Sevier, Arkansas.
1850, Robert C. Winthrop, Massachusetts.
1852, David Meriwether, Kentucky.
1853, Samuel S. Phelps, Vermont.
1854, Jared W. Williams, New Hampshire.
1875, Charles H. Bell, New Hampshire.
1885, Henry W. Blair, New Hampshire.
1891, Horace Chilton, Texas.

Governor Stone is seriously opposed to adding any greater burdens upon the taxpayers of the Commonwealth, and he will be heartily endorsed by fair-minded persons in refusing to call an extra session and entailing an additional expense of about $300,000. Even if an extra session were called it is doubtful if there would be any satisfactory result, as the "antis" have adopted tactics which are calculated to repulse any effort which leads to a fair and honorable solution of the deadlock problem.

Most of the Republicans in the Legislature who voted against the caucus nominee did so declaring that they would not vote for Quay as long as charges were hanging over him, now that these have been removed the Governor has assumed to act in accordance with their wishes, inasmuch as the Legislators are not in a position to cast their votes. Two of Bucks County representatives declared that the only reason they voted against Quay was because he was held for trial—pleading "no trial no caucus," and "no acquittal no election." Senator Quay has secured both, and in justice is entitled to his seat.

The great State of Pennsylvania should not be left with but one Senator, and as there is no probability of an election until the people have an opportunity to speak, the Governor will be commended for his effort to give the State its proper representation.

The whole case will be submitted to the voters at the next Legislative election, and they will decide whether they want Matthews S. Quay continued in the Senate. And it is believed that they will fully endorse the action of Governor Stone for fearlessly thwarting the schemes of those who sought to prevent the election of the people's choice.

All Republicans recognize the value of the retention of Senate control. While there is scarcely a doubt that Mr. McKinley will be renominated and elected his own successor, it is always wise to provide for possible defeat. Bryan will assuredly be McKinley's opponent, and the Republicans are anxious to have a good working majority in the Senate, not only on general principles, but also to serve as a check upon Bryanism in the event of its triumph. Therefore at this time the Senate will be particularly desirous of seating Mr. Quay and a Republican from California and one from Utah. The fact that the Democratic Governer of Delaware will be permitted to appoint a Senator only tends to add Democratic votes for the proposition to confirm the Governors' appointments. A Republican Senator, who has been prominent in national affairs for a quarter of a century, says:

The seating of Republican Senators from three States, upon appointments by the Governors, will make the Senate safely Republican, even if McKinley should lead us to national defeat. Those Senators once seated could not be unseated. Each case would be called res adjudicata. Each Senator would have a right to vote on his own case if any effort should subsequently be made to unseat him. Therefore it seems quite likely that the Senate precedents may be reversed under existing circumstances and that Quay may be given the seat to which he has been appointed.

Hatboro is in the dumps. According to the esteemed Public Spirit that isolated town has tried unsuccessfully for years to get a trolley outlet, but has always failed. It is apparently not now any nearer the goal than several years ago, although a number of public spirited citizens have agreed to contribute several thousand dollars as a free gift to further the enterprise.

It had telephone connections once with the outside world, but the line was taken away. Several months ago poles were brought into town to re-establish the line, but the matter still hangs fire.

Two weeks ago an improved mail service was secured. It ran for six days and was then modified into nothing.

Hatboro needs a good shaking up.

The greatest complaint made by the Anti-Quay League of Montgomery County is that the regular organization savors too much of bossism, and objection is made because men are "picked" for positions. The whole anti-Quay organization, in fact, is the worst boss-ridden arrangement in political circles. The spectacle of the "insurgents" answering every beck and call of Boss Flinn and Boss Martin at Harrisburg was proof of that fact. In Montgomery County Dambly's League has picked five men for State delegates, while the Quay organization leaves an open field and there are already a dozen names for the voters to consider. The "antis" out-Quay Quay in a manner that is startling.

NEGRO LYNCHING.

The whole country has been shocked by the report of the lynching of Sam Hose and Lige Strickland in Georgia. Hose was guilty of a most terrible crime—the murder of a husband and the ravishing of the wife. There is no punishment within the realm of thought that is too severe to administer to such a brute, and hot Southern blood prompted the action which ended in the death of the two negroes, who were burned at the stake. A howling mob took the law into their own hands, not caring to trust to the court to avenge the double crime. Regarding the affair the Atlanta Constitution says:

The terrible expiation which "Sam" Hose was forced to pay for his crime will arouse a flood of discussion carried on by those who know the facts on the one side and by those who do not care for facts on the other.

But, while the form of this criminal's punishment cannot be upheld, let those who are disposed to criticise it look into the facts—and by these facts temper the judgment they may render.

An unassuming, industrious and hard-working farmer after his day's toil sat at his evening meal. Around him sat wife and children, happy in the presence of the man who was fulfilling to them every duty imposed by nature. At peace with the world, serving God and loyal to humanity, they looked forward to the coming day.

Noiselessly the murderer, with uplifted axe, advanced from the rear and sank it to the hilt in the brain of the unsuspecting victim.

Tearing the child from the mother's breast he flung it into the pool of blood oozing from its father's wound.

Then began the culmination which has dethroned the reason of the people of Western Georgia during the last week. As critics will howl about the lynching "The Constitution" will be pardoned for stating the plain facts.

The wife was seized, choked, thrown upon the floor, where her clothing lay in the blood of her husband, and ravished.

Remember the fact. Remember the dark night in the country home. Remember the slain husband, and, above all, remember that shocking degradation which was inflicted by the black beast, his victim swimming in her husband's warm blood as the brute held her to the floor.

Keep the facts in mind. When the picture is painted of the ravisher in flames, go back and view that darker picture of Mrs. Crawford outraged in the blood of her murdered husband.

The arrest of Ellery P. Ingham upon the charge of aiding and abetting the gang of counterfeiters caused a great sensation in Bristol, where the accused was well and favorably known. Mr. Ingham heretofore has borne an excellent reputation, and his many friends declare it is impossible to believe that he was in any way criminally connected with the culprits. Mr. Ingham was formerly a resident of Bucks County, and in the light of the high regard in which he has been held here we hope and believe that he will satisfactorily dispel the clouds which hover around him at the present time.

Next Sunday the Philadelphia Inquirer will issue a great Manila number, dedicated to Admiral Dewey. The colored section will be devoted almost exclusively to the reproduction of paintings and photographs showing Dewey's ships in peace and war, while other pictures will vividly portray the battle of Manila. We have received an advance copy of a handsome portrait in colors of Admiral Dewey which the Inquirer will present free with next Sunday's issue.

One of the arguments used in behalf of the formation of the so-called trusts is the economy gained in the distribution of the product or commodity. In such case the "drummer" will soon become a thing of the past. When all factories sell at the same price and all orders pass through the hands of one selling agent the commercial traveler will be compelled to seek greener fields.

James Eckels, ex-Controller of the treasury, sees the finish of the Democrats in 1900 if Bryanism is to be an issue. In an interview he said,

"If the Democratic party in the campaign of 1900 stands upon the Chicago platform it is sure of defeat. The silverites cannot longer depend upon the support of Western States in case they lose in the East."

Richard Harding Davis, the popular author and famous war correspondent, is to wed a Chicago heiress. He sent the engagement ring from London by Jaggers, a special messenger.

"Bottom Fell Out."

Doylestown Republican.

The trial of ex-Senator Quay, charged with conspiracy to misuse the State's money, has ended almost like a flash in the pan. The Commonwealth utterly failed to make out its case. District Attorney Rothermel received the case as a legacy from his predecessor in that office and made the most of it, presenting all the evidence that could be admitted in a manner that won for him general commendation. Nevertheless, the "bottom fell out" of the case when he was unable to connect Quay with any of the alleged illegal transactions in connection with the broken People's Bank. The trial was eminently fair and just. Judge Biddle, before whom the case was tried, evidently did not deem it necessary, by reason of the meagre testimony, to dwell at length thereon in his charge to the jury and in nine minutes that charge was delivered. In concluding he expressed his satisfaction with the fairness with which the case had been tried.

The full intensity of living is reached only by the perfectly healthy. Sickness discounts the capacity for enjoyment. If his body is all out of order and run-down, he will not be able to enjoy anything, no matter how full of enjoyment it may be for other people. If he is just a little bit out of order, if he "is not sick, but doesn't feel just right" he will only be able to enjoy things in a half-hearted sort of way. The nearer he is to being perfectly well, the nearer will his capacity for enjoyment be perfect. If this condition doesn't exist, something ought to be done. SENATOR QUAY IS VINDICATED.

GREAT POPULAR DEMONSTRATION OVER HIS TRIUMPHAL ACQUITTAL IN COURT—ENEMIES COMPLETELY ROUTED—COLLAPSE OF ONE OF THE GREATEST POLITICAL CONSPIRACIES IN HISTORY.

(Special Correspondence.)

Philadelphia, April 25.—Colonel Matthew Stanley Quay has been completely vindicated by a jury of his piers in the trial growing out of a dastardly conspiracy of his political enemies. Twelve American citizens, "good men and true," have found a verdict of "not guilty" in what will be memorable as the most celebrated case in court in the political history of this country.

This closing chapter in the history of persecution and character assassination was marked by scenes such as have never been paralleled in and about a Philadelphia court room. The minute the verdict was announced it was pandemonium let loose. Men shouted and tossed their hats and surged about this silent but happy man. Women cried, waved their handkerchiefs and tried to throw their arms about his neck. In the midst of it all Quay, dignified, silent, with face as imperturbable as ever, grasped hands as they came and vainly tried to elbow his way to a place where he could be alone.

He said but few words, but there was a softness in the tone of his voice as he reneatedly murmured "Thank you." He felt more than he said, for to him it was the flood tide of light after the hour of darkness. His triumph had come and, best of all, this man who has been hounded as few have been hounded before, saw and heard and felt that the people were with him.

THE VERDICT RECEIVED.

It was a few minutes before 11 o'clock on Friday last when the jury appeared in court and Crier Hart stepped forward and in cold, official accents said: "Gentlemen of the jury, are you agreed upon your verdict?"

Foreman Hill, who is a blonde haired young man, nodded his head as he answered: "Yes, sir."

THE VERDICT.

"How say you? Do you find the defendant guilty or not guilty?"

"Not guilty," came the answer in a voice that could be heard all over the room."

If the jurors answered to the next question, "And so say you all?" no one heard it, for the first "burst of a cheer," suppressed by the louder yells of "silence" from the tipstaves, drowned the words. Every one rose to his feet, and the yells of "silence" were followed by cries of "sit down," "sit down."

Quay himself came near giving way. His jaw quivered an instant, his eyes grew moist, but he recovered himself as the big and burly Shapley grasped his hand, exclaiming, "Let me congratulate you, senator." Mr. Shields was pouring out his congratulations at the same time.

Outside in the corridor there was no judge to be respected and no officer to quell the tumult, for they were all too busy cheering with the rest. He at last managed to edge his way to the corridor. But it was getting from the frying pan into the fire. It wasn't a crowd that was waiting for him. It was a mob drunk with joy, mad with enthusiasm. Cheer after cheer rent the air and hats flew up with the recklessness of frenzy. The guards made no effort to quell the tumult. They were yelling and cheering with the rest. It took the senator nearly ten minutes to reach the corner where the elevators are located. He at last managed to get clear of the mob.

ANOTHER OVATION.

The news had already reached the first floor, and another howling, cheering mob was waiting for the senator, who began to show signs of fear for the first time in his life. It was the same thing on the street, only worse, and when he reached the corner of Broad and Chestnut streets the senator was in the center of a surging throng that must have numbered more than a thousand persons. Crowds of women, who a moment before had been shopping, caught the infection and shouted and stamped and waved their handkerchiefs. Only by the narrowest chance did the silent statesman escape from being Hobsonized then and there, for more than one excited woman tried to throw her arms about his neck. It was a grand testimonial to the American sense of fair play.

At last, by a superhuman effort, the "old man" managed to tear his way through the people and with a run he gained the entrance to the Land Title building. Several women, better runners than the others, were at his heels and were only prevented from getting in the elevator by the slamming of the door.

The senator went direct to Lawyer Shapley's office, where he was met by his son, Richard R. Quay, and a number of his personal friends. The greeting between father and son was affectionate in the extreme.

OFF FOR WASHINGTON.

The senator was still disinclined to talk, but when some one excitedly denounced Martin, Wanamaker and Gordon, he remarked with a smile: "Well, they made lots of trouble for me." As soon as the excitement had died down Colonel Quay slipped down to the Walton, packed up, and with his son Richard and Private Secretary Wright, took the first train for Washington.

At the Walton and at the depot the senator had to hold two more receptions. Those that witnessed the scene at the station say it was almost without parallel. The hero of the day was almost in danger of his life, and cheers still echoed in his ears as the train pulled out.

Senator Quay had left town when the announcement of his appointment as United States senator was wired from Harrisburg. The action of Governor Stone only added fuel to the fire of enthusiasm, and the plaudits for the executive were as plentiful as were the tributes to Quay.

A JUST VERDICT.

Not even Senator Quay's worst enemy—if he be sane—can gainsay the fact that the verdict was just. The odds were all against acquittal. The district attorney took every advantage of his privilege to stand jurors aside, and he held the whip hand when the 12 men were selected. Judge Biddle also gave the prosecution the widest latitude and they presented all they had, which was—nothing.

District Attorney Rothermel, although he lost the case, made his reputation as a criminal lawyer. He was a match for the other side at every point. The only reason he lost was that he had no case to start with. But during the entire trial Mr. Rothermel was not only a great and ingenuous attorney, but he was a gentle man. The case was a legacy left him by his predecessor. It had been born during the closing agonies of Graham, and conceived when he first tasted the bitter cup of defeat. The trial itself has been remarkable in many ways. It was at the close of the tenth day that the case was submitted to the jury.

In the winter of 1896 and 1897, I had a spell of bronchitis lasting all winter, leaving a troublesome cough until I again tried Stretch's Balsam, which gave me prompt relief; have also used it for the children when suffering with coughs and colds with the utmost satisfaction. Bicycle Business.

The nice weather has brought out a multitude of bicycles and the repair men have been so rushed with work that they have hardly had time to eat a square meal. Dealers report a good demand for wheels this spring. The Columbia and the Rambler and the Monarch are the high grade wheels which are selling the best. Some cheap department store wheels have come to town, which have had already to be taken to the bicycle hospital for repairs. It is from these cheap wheels that the repair men make their principal living, as it usually costs about the purchase price of the bicycles for the season's repairs upon them.

Death of Jacob S. Young.

Jacob S. Young, one of Bristol's oldest and most respected citizens, died at his home, 207 Wood street, last Friday. He was an active member of the School Board for many years, and also a valued member of the Methodist Church, in which body he served as trustee. The funeral took place on Tuesday afternoon, the interment being in the Methodist graveyard. Mr. Young was the father-in-law of Captain George F. Tyler, general manager of the Trenton and Philadelphia Transportation Company.

Three Marriages at St. Mark's.

Yesterday was a busy day at St. Mark's R. C. Church. Within a few hours, Rev. H. Garvey united three couples in the holy bonds of wedlock.

Shortly after twelve o'clock Miss Mary Madden, of Dorrance street, and James O'Brien, of New York, were married. After a wedding trip to Niagara Falls Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien will reside in New York State.

Miss Helen McGlynn, of Bristol, and Michael O Donnell, of Philadelphia, were then united by the tieing of the nuptial knot.

Miss Mary Barry and James Caffrey, of Bristol, were the last happy pair to be united. They will move immediately into a home on Pine street.

Hetherington—Smith.

Last evening at eight o'clock at the home of John H. Smith, 819 Pond street, Miss Lottie Smith was united in marriage to Robert Hetherington, of Wood street, by Rev. A. Bemueller of the German Lutheran Church. Miss Amy Smith, a sister of the bride, and Harvey Hetherington, brother of the groom, were bridesmaid and best man. The house was very prettily decorated and after the ceremony supper was served. About sixty guests were present from Bristol and Hamburg, the former home of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Hetherington will reside in Bristol.

Counterfeit Stamps in Bristol.

Deputy Collector James Patterson has visited a great many places in Bucks County where cigars are sold, but has been unable to find any made at the Lancaster factories by Jacobs & Co., the boxes of which had counterfeit revenue stamps placed thereon, except a small lot of 150 cigars innocently purchased by a Bristol druggist. These were confiscated. They were of a cheap variety and were obtained from a traveling salesman.

EDITOR OF THE GAZETTE:—The writer has learned that the Police Committee of the new Council has ordered that all "nickel-in-the-slot" machines shall be removed from restaurants, cigar stores and other places of public resort, and he desires to commend the committee for its action, in which it will be upheld by all law-abiding citizens. It is a pleasure to approve action of this kind, and the writer trusts that the committee will continue the course of conduct thus auspiciously begun. JNO. C. MAULE.

Cycling.

Who is going to promote the first race meet.

Arthur A. Zimmerman is registered with the National Cycling Association, his number being 1, Arthur Gardiner being number 2.

Joseph P. Rogers, who competed in the Bristol races two seasons ago, and amateur champion of Philadelphia last year, has just recovered from a severe attack of typhoid fever.

All riders competing under the rules of the N C. A. must first be registered with the Board of Control, the fee for professionals being $2 and amateurs $1. Professional trainers must be registered—fee $2.

At the Paris meeting of the International Cyclists' Association, April 1, some of the delegates were in favor of striking the L. A. W. off the membership list and affiliating with the N. C. A. at once. It was decided to give the League until July to show its course or withdraw from the field.

Fourteen members of the Keystone Athletic Association of Bristol, took their second bicycle run of the season on last Sunday, going over to Burlington on the ferry and from there to Moorestown, returning by way of Riverton and Riverside, a distance of about forty miles. On Sunday next the club will run to Fox Chase, and a good turnout is requested.

Arthur Zimmerman has leased the Asbury Park cycle track and will run it under the auspices of the N. C. A. He will open the season with a cycle race meet on Decoration Day. During the season he will have two big circuit meets, when all the great "outlaws" will compete, Zimmy himself included. The old king of riders expects to get match races with the present champions of sprinters, Bald and Cooper, during the season, the events to be without pace.

Another Addition.

On account of a lack of room in the winding and spooling department at the worsted mills of William H. Grundy & Co. a brick addition is being erected, 20x100 feet, to relieve the cramped condition of the machinery in that section.

On Monday afternoon John Irwin's horse ran away from the Bath street bakery to the hill going down to the basin at the foot of Cedar street, where the flying trip of the horse and wagon ended by rolling over and over to the stable entrance at the foot of the hill.

The German Lutheran Sunday School will be held in the morning from 9 to 10 after May 1st during the summer months.

Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup banishes at once all forms of throat diseases, and always effects a permanent cure. This wonderful remedy has cured thousands of sufferers from bronchitis, hoarseness and other bronchial troubles.

"Way Down East."

"Way Down East" has returned to the Chestnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, and during the entire first week of its stay standing room was at a premium, while so large has the advance sale been for the second week that all records for receipts promise to be broken. The success of "Way Down East" is due to the fact that it is an absolutely clean play—one that no man need fear to take a woman to see—a play that has received over 1,000 unsolicited complimentary letters from clergymen of every denomination all over the country. It is a play which appeals to the heart—a simple story of plain, everyday folks who live on a New Hampshire farm, and from the 'Squire and the Village Constable down to the summer boarder and Hi Holler, the chore boy, all the types are absolutely true to nature. Then, too, the company is the strongest that could be gathered together, comprising, as it does, Odell Williams, Phœbe Davis, Sara Stevens, Forrest Robinson, Louise Galloway, George Backus, Felix Haney, Ella Hugh Wood, Frank Bell, J. H. Bunney and others of national importance. The great snow scene in "Way Down East" is considered one of the grandest stage triumphs of realism ever scored—a raging, howling blizzard of hail, sleet and snow sweeping against the farm house, filling up the window panes and making the audience actually shiver at the intensely realistic effect. Two matinees a week are given, on Wednesday and Saturday.

Messrs. Perot and Slintz, of Hulmeville, begin next week the shipment of asparagus to the Philadelphia markets.

HE GAVE UP HIS VEST

BUT REVENGE AND THE GARMENT WERE NOT LONG WANTING

Lieutenant Brewer's Exciting Experience With Rain-In-the-Face, In Which the Great Sioux Chief Was Thoroughly Cowed.

Captain Edward P Brewer of the regular cavalry while a lieutenant was stationed at Fort Sheridan with his troop during the World's fair Brewer is known among his brother officers and the society of Chicago as "Pansy," a name given to him for his extreme nicety in dress and his performances as escort militaire to the Infanta Eulalie But he is no carpet knight, as his encounter with old Rain-In the Face will demonstrate

During all the years of his service, with the one exception of his tour at Sheridan, Brewer has been in the field or frontier garrisons He has put in many long years on the trails of Apaches and Sioux and is noted as an Indian fighter The encounter with the wily, treacherous, cross eyed, bow legged old chief and medicine man was the aftermath of the last uprising among the Sioux Brewer and his command went forth from Rosebud and rounded up old "Rain" and his band and forced them to get back to the agency This made the old Indian very sore, and he laid for a chance to get even He got even, but eventually quit loser This is how it all came about

Soon after his return Mr Brewer applied for a few days' leave of absence to visit some friends a few hundred miles away Having received permission, he started in the ambulance one morning with a party of ladies for the railroad depot

Looking ahead, they were considerably surprised to see a mounted Indian with a rifle thrown across his saddle bow blocking the passage He was one of the finest specimens of his race, a man of about 45 or 50 years of age, well built and dressed with gaudiest of costumes Nervously toying with the rifle across his saddle and casting several scowling glances at the lieutenant, whom he no doubt recognized as his recent captor, he spoke a few very impressive and vehement words to the old driver who spoke Sioux about as well as the Indian himself

"What does he say, Burgess, and why doesn t he let us pass?" inquired the lieutenant scenting some devilment on the part of his copper colored friend

"It's Rain-in-the-Face, sir, and he says he wants your yellow vest "

Impressed with the fact that there was no alternative and moved by the entreaties of the frightened ladies the lieutenant reluctantly disrobed and passed the coveted prize to the redskin, who received it with a malicious grin of triumph and then allowed the ambulance to proceed Brewer had no intention of letting the matter drop here, but resigned himself to the sting of the premeditated insult with as good a grace as possible under the circumstances, firmly resolving to fix that Indian at the first opportunity that offered. He requested the driver and ladies to maintain the strictest silence

After the expiration of his leave he returned to the post A few days after he chanced to meet a few Indian boys and promised a big silver dollar to the one who should first inform him when Rain in-the Face came into the post A month went by, and Brewer was sitting one afternoon with a group of officers expatiating on the virtues of the first sergeant of K troop, an old dragoon of 20 years service, when he was interrupted by the steward, who announced that an Indian boy was impatiently demanding to see him

Immediately the almost forgotten episode of the vest occurred to Brewer and, unceremoniously seizing his campaign hat, he rushed for the door A little half naked Indian boy informed him that Rain in-the Face had just come into camp and then reached out his hand for the coveted dollar

Mr Brewer ordered his horse and mounting, rode across the parade in the direction of the now visible redskin, who was heading up the well beaten path to the "canteen " The first intimation old "Rain" received that any one was anxious to see him was the whistling of a bullet past his head Hastily glancing in the direction of the shot, he saw his old cavalry friend headed toward him at full speed Rain-in the Face immediately wheeled his supple little pony in the direction of the agency and set out at full speed Brewer, seeing that he had his man on the run, satisfied himself with keeping a couple of hundred yards in the rear The chase led up hill and down dale, the prairie flew by so fast that it made one dizzy to look at the tall grass Brewer discharged an occasional shot to make the Indian appreciate the gravity of his situation The chief was now thoroughly frightened and gave vent to his feelings by a series of short high shrieks at every shot

Rain-in-the-Face reached his tepee, flung himself to the ground and rushed inside to grasp a weapon, when Brewer's rifle rang out again, and a ball tore its way through the dry buffalo hides of the Indian's tent The sturdy lieutenant reined up his panting steed in front of the squalid hovel and with his rifle at his shoulder summoned the terrified savage to come out

Rain-in-the-Face sheepishly obeyed, with his hands held over his head in token of surrender Brewer made the Indian disrobe He removed his feathered ornaments, ghost shirt, breechclout, beaded leggings and moccasins until he was as devoid of clothes as on his natal day Brewer then directed him to place his apparel on the flames, which he sheepishly did. The finery was soon converted into ashes, and his most prized and boasted trophy, the yellow vest, was next ordered produced Its pristine gaudy splendor was gone, as it had too often partaken of the food of its thievish possessor With another shot or two which threw up the dirt at the Indian's feet Rain in the Face executed some rapid steps never known to wardance or puppy feast and disappeared into the corner of his dingy tepee Rain-in-the-Face, the great Ogalalla Sioux, chief warrior and medicine man, the pride of his race, was cowed by a boy lieutenant half his age

Lieutenant Brewer and Rain in-the-Face frequently met afterward, but the Indian skulked at the heels of the young lieutenant like a whipped cur —Chicago Chronicle.

A Child's Caul.

The following folklore is from Liphook, Hants. A child born in a caul will always be a wanderer so long as the caul is kept and, moreover, being unable to sink in water, cannot be drowned An old woman told my niece lately of her brother who was so born, and so potent was the influence of the caul that when his mother tried to bathe him he sat on the surface of the water and if forced down came up again like a cork. There seems no doubt that this was fully believed and related in all seriousness The mother had kept the caul stretched on a sheet of note paper, and whenever her son was in danger it became wet and soft, but it remained dry and like a dried bladder so long as he was safe. It got destroyed somehow, and soon after the brother, a sailor, was shipwrecked and drowned

Prominent Citizenship.

"I suppose you are one of the prominent citizens of the place?" said the stranger

"No, to tell the truth I am not, ' answered the prosperous looking man "I am just about half a one I sit on the platform occasionally at a public meeting, and I subscribe to some of the funds and occasionally can be found among the guarantors of an opera season But I am not a full fledged prominent citizen yet Sometimes I skip one or two of these features and in other ways show that I haven't the welfare of the city entirely at heart. And, besides that, I once consented, at the earnest solicitation of my neighbors, to run for an office in which there was neither special honor nor profit, and you know very well that no prominent citizen would ever do that."—Chicago Post.

GREELEY PLAYED CHECKERS.

While the Crowd of Politicians Warmed Their Heels Outside.

"My father had a curious experience with Horace Greeley years ago," said Mr Albert Caldwell of St Louis "It was in the lively times just preceding the Greeley-Grant campaign My father was then living at Utica, N Y , and became interested in some political scheme—I don t know what—about which it was considered very important to obtain Mr Greeley s advice After much consultation he was sent as a committee of one to New York city to interview the great editor

"When he arrived, he found it almost impossible to secure an audience Greeley was besieged by an army of all kinds of people, big party leaders from here, there and everywhere were constantly flocking in to hold conferences The management of The Tribune was still on his shoulders, on top of everything else, and he found it necessary to bar the way to his office by a corps of underlings and secretaries My father tried vainly for several days to run this gantlet and at last he succeeded in making an appointment He was greeted at the hour named by an assistant editor, who took him aside and strongly impressed upon him the necessity of stating his case briefly and plainly

"He also hinted that Greeley's temper was one of the best and urged him to consume as little time as possible With these injunctions in his ear he was admitted to the inner sanctum, where he discovered the editor seated alone at a large desk For some moments Greeley paid no attention to him, but seemed lost in thought Then he turned abruptly

"'Aren't you a member of the Checker club at Utica?' he asked My father was greatly startled by the irrelevancy of the question and managed to reply that he was H rum!" said Greeley 'Do you play a pretty good game?' 'Fair ' said my father, still more astonished At that Greeley opened a drawer, took out a checker set and invited my father to be seated 'I ll try you a game now,' he said

"They played for about two hours while the crowd chafed and clamored outside According to my father s account, they tied, and he won the rubber During the games Greeley never said a word about politics and my father was so interested and I dare say so excited by the novelty of the situation that he clean forgot his errand until he was on the train coming home He never saw Greeley again A few months later the editor was dead "—New Orleans Times Democrat

FRANKLIN'S TOLERANCE

The Philosopher Always Ready to Serve His Sectarian Friends.

One usually thinks of Franklin as anything but a religious man, and religious in the orthodox, conventional sense he certainly was not Yet he was a believer in God and immortality and the efficacy of good works His close personal friends were, many of them, devout Christians In the chapter on "Franklin s Religion in his "Many Sided Franklin" series in The Century Mr Paul L Ford says

Franklin had that rarest kind of tolerance which tolerates the opinions of others and though he laughingly asserted that 'Orthodoxy is my doxy and heterodoxy is your doxy' his whole life was one contradiction of the epigram, for the faith or lack of faith of his circle of friends ranged from the most doctrinal of ministers to the most radical of free thinkers For such rigid Puritans as the Rev Drs Cooper and Mather of Boston for the enthusiast Whitefield for the Anglican bishop of St Asaph and for the Abbes de La Roche and Morellet he showed as much affection and respect as he did for Hume, Lord Le Despenser Thomas Paine and others closer in accord with his own views Nor was it ever a one sided regard No man in Penns lvania exercised such influence over the Quakers Massachusetts made him her agent in Great Britain, and he served her faithfully, even to the defending of her religious intolerance against English criticism In France the papal nuncio consulted him frequently and followed his advice in the changes the Revolutionary war made possible or necessary in the Catholic church in America Absolutely unsectarian as he was, Franklin apparently was trusted by all sects and he seems never to have refused a service that he could render any one of them

A Real Fortress.

The monastery of Solovetsk, in Archangel, Russia is inclosed on every side by a wall of granite bowlders measuring nearly a mile in circumference, and is the best protected in the world The monastery itself is very strongly fortified, being supported by round and square towers about 80 feet in height, with walls 20 feet in thickness The monastery consists in reality of six churches, which are completely filled with statues of all kinds and precious stones

Upon the walls and the towers surrounding these churches are mounted huge guns which in the time of the Crimean war were directed against the British White sea squadron The monks who inhabited the monastery at that time marched in procession on the granite walls while the shells were flying over their heads to prove how little they feared the attack of the British fleet Ten thousand pilgrims come annually to Solovetsk from all parts of Russia to view the churches and the relics They are conveyed in steamers commanded and manned solely by monks

WOMEN IN POKER

A Game That Changed Two Dear Friends Into Deadly Enemies

Said a man of my acquaintance recently "Do you know, I believe women would be the most desperate gamblers on earth if they dared!"

"Nonsense!" was my remark

"It's not nonsense," he argued warmly "I've watched them, old and young, pretty and homely, light and dark, and even in the small games that their pocketbooks and their consciences allow them to play their excitement in winning or losing is something terrific "

And he caused me to do a little thinking on his side, though not for the world would I have admitted it to him

I remembered a game of cards that caused the separation of two of the dearest and sweetest women in the world three years ago

Of course it was poker

Poker seems to be played everywhere, or was at that time, and this diabolical cluster of 'fulls,' 'straights,' 'two pairs, ' threes of a kind," "flushes ' and "fours ' has caused more misery and made more mischief among the women of this city than will ever be exploited'

There were five of them in a fashionable boarding house up town, and I, as a caller, made six

Rain had ruined a matinee proposition, there was nothing to read, and dullness descended

"Let's play poker," said Mrs C

"Splendid!" was the general ejaculation

Two of the ladies had never played, but they were soon instructed Then it was discovered that there were no chips But a descent upon the cook produced 300 or 400 white beans, which Mrs C took charge of

I ll be banker,' she said as she counted out the beans in lots of 100 each "We ll play 5 cent limit and you shall have $5 worth '

The two amateurs gurgled with amusement

'How awfully funny!' they said "Why, we feel like real gamblers '

I declined to join the game believing that $5 in the pot was worth $20 in the 'jack pot "

The game proceeded amid much nervous excitement and many 'Ohs' and "Ahs!' and 'Dear mes!" and remarks of that sort

"Why, isn't that a flush? '

"Why, your hand wasn t as good as mine I think you re real mean "

The somebody asked

'What good are four queens?"

Whereupon all laid down their hands and the inquisitive one gathered in all there was in sight with the remark

'I didn t have four queens, but just wondered "

At length there was a battle royal on between Mrs C and one of the beginners I happened to sit right behind the latter and saw her hand

It consisted of three aces and a pair of kings Nothing but "four of a kind' could beat it

Back and forth back and forth, bet and "raise " more bets, more 'raises,' until the holder of the 'full hand ' had exhausted all her beans and clamored for more

The banker gave her 100 more and made a memorandum of it

The betting went on as fiercely as before I felt like giving the 'full hand ' lady a hint that she was betting her hand too high but of course could not do so

At last the banker "called" and threw her hand on the table

"Four sixes!"

"Dear me!" sighed the loser "I thought I'd surely win What a lot I beti Lucky it wasn't real money"

Mrs C started at her

"What do you mean!"

"Why, it s lucky they were only beans "

'You must be crazy, Mrs B The beans represent money You owe me $8 '

'Why, you're talking nonsense '

Mrs C s lips grew very white

"Do you mean to say ' she asked, "that you didn't understand that we were playing for money? '

'Of course I didn t "

Mrs C swept the beans into a receptacle, dabbed the cards into the table drawer cast a look of withering scorn upon her late opponent and stalked out of the room

The two women have not spoken to each other since —San Francisco Call

There is no argument so good as an absolute, plain truthful statement of fact There is nothing so interesting as fact

In the true happenings in the everyday life of every day people are materials for most thrilling novels There are every day stories of heroism, suffering and the final triumph of good over evil—of happiness finally crowning endeavor Here is a case in point

In the county of Escambia in Alabama is the little town of Flomaton and there lives Mrs Mollie Grimes She was a good wife and mother but several years ago she found her health slipping away from her She realized that this meant the inevitable nervousness and irritability that would surely lose for her the affection of her children and husband and that as her health declined discord and misery would appear in her home She was filled with the loving motherly instinct, but two miscarriages in succession almost broke her heart She had almost lost hope when the clouds rolled away and the light of health and happiness returned

She tells her story in these words

I was almost heart broken to think I could not raise any more children and had to suffer as I did I had lost two children by miscarriages and I fully expected to lose another when in August 1897 I learned of and began taking Dr Pierce's Favorite Prescription and took it until after baby was born in November With my other children I had suffered everything that flesh could suffer but this time I was in perfect health and had a very easy time I was in labor only a short time I cannot praise Dr Pierce s medicines enough for I believe they certainly saved my baby s life and maybe my own life as well I took the Favorite Prescription and also the Pleasant Pellets' The Pleasant Pellets act like a charm
